

The faculty members of the Department of Microbiology, SGRR University, Dehradun, actively contribute to the co-curricular and extracurricular development of students through their involvement in cultural and sports activities. Their active participation reflects the Department's commitment to the holistic development of students beyond academics.

Prof. Manjusha Tyagi has served as the In-charge of Cultural Activities, playing a pivotal role in planning, organizing, and coordinating various cultural events at the University. Under her guidance, students have enthusiastically participated in competitions, cultural festivals, awareness programmes, and other extracurricular activities, fostering creativity, confidence, leadership, and teamwork.

In addition, faculty members of the Department have contributed as members of the Women's Cricket Team Committee, supporting the organization, coordination, and promotion of sports activities for female students. Their efforts have encouraged greater participation in sports, promoted physical fitness, and strengthened the spirit of sportsmanship among students.

Through their active involvement in cultural and sports activities, the faculty members of the Department of Microbiology continue to promote a vibrant campus environment that nurtures the overall personality, talents, and well-being of students.
